YMBOLIZED in the Vindicatrix which crowns the shaft of the monument erected by the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, the emblem of Southern womanhood, fitly stands, the immortal spirit of her land shining unquenched within her eyes, and her hand uplifted in an eternal appeal to the God of justice and of truth.

The heroism of Southern women was the inspiration of the matchless bravery of the Southern soldiers. Their hands girded the sash and their hearts fared forth their knights to the field.

Now, the days of youth for many of these women lie buried on forgotten battle-fields. But in the twilight of their years they have builded: "Love's memorial unto valor that shall stand while time shall bide."

THE JEFFERSON DAVIS MONUMENT

THE JEFFERSON DAVIS MONUMENT consists of a semi-circular colonnade, terminating at each end in a square pier, and a large column or shaft rising from the center of the enclosed space. It is about forty-nine feet wide across the front by about thirty feet in depth, from front to back, and sixty-seven feet in total height. The colonnade, composed of thirteen Doric columns besides the two terminating piers, rises about eighteen feet above the sidewalk, and has its frieze decorated with bronze seals of the eleven States that seceded and the three others that sent representatives and troops.

At about the center of the semi-circular space enclosed by the colonnade stands a large Doric column five feet four and one-half inches in diameter. This forms a background for the bronze statue of President Davis, and also carries on its top a smaller allegorical bronze statue, whose right hand points to heaven and beneath which is the motto of the Confederacy, "Deo Vindice," "God being the vindicator."

This main column is enriched with flutings and with bands which are decorated with bronze letters and stars and the great seal of the Confederacy. It also bears in large bronze letters the inscription, "Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States of America, 1861-1865."

The statue of Mr. Davis, of heroic size, stands at a level with the base of the column, about twelve feet above the roadway. He is represented in a standing posture, as though addressing an audience. The right hand and foot are firmly extended, while the left hand rests upon the open book of history. On the inner curve of the surrounding colonnade, as though he were referring to it with the gesture of his right hand, is placed the following extract from his farewell speech in the United States Senate, when he resigned from that body upon the secession of Mississippi, the State he represented: "Not in hostility to others, not to injure any section of the country, not even for our own pecuniary benefit; but from the high and solemn motive of defending and protecting the rights we inherited, and which it is our duty to transmit unshorn to our children."

The piers that terminate the colonnade bear each a bronze tablet, one to the Confederate army and the other to the navy.

The Army Tablet has the inscription, " From Sumter to Appomattox, four years of unflinching struggle against overwhelming odds."

The Navy Tablet has, " Giving new examples of heroism, teaching new methods of warfare, it carried the flag of the South to the most distant seas."

Each pier is surmounted by a bronze group of war trophies, consisting of Confederate shields and flags, together with cannon and other emblems of land and naval warfare. The stone work of the central shaft reaches to a height of sixty feet above the roadway, or sixty-seven feet to the top of the head of the allegorical figure. The stone used is South Carolina granite, of a beautiful, light shade and fine, even texture, and all the cutting and erecting has been done by workmen here in Richmond.

The monument, as a whole, is the product of the joint labors of Mr. William Churchill Noland, architect, and Mr. Edward V. Valentine, sculptor, both of Richmond, the former being entrusted with the general design, including all the stone-work and the strictly decorative bronze work, and the latter with the statue of Mr. Davis and the allegorical figure on top.

The total cost of the monument is about seventy thousand ($70,000) Dollars.

JEFFERSON DAVIS

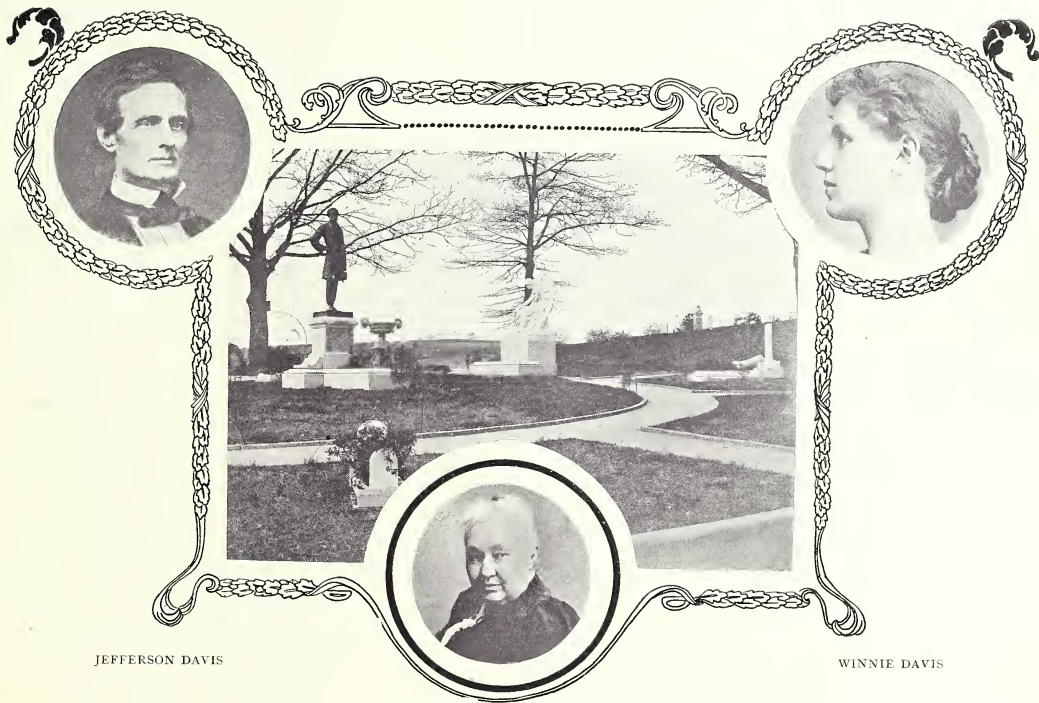

JEFFERSON DAVIS, first and only President of the Southern Confederacy, was born in Christian county, Kentucky, June 3, 1808. His father, Samuel Davis, removed his family soon afterward from Kentucky to a home near Woodville, Wilkinson county, Mississippi. President Monroe appointed Jefferson Davis to the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1824. He graduated in 1828, served on the frontier in the Black Hawk War, and was promoted to be first lieutenant of dragoons for gallantry in action, but resigned June 30, 1835, and settled near Vicksburg, Miss., as a cotton planter.

He was Democratic member of Congress, representing Mississippi from 1845 to 1846, and served with distinction as colonel of the First Mississippi Regiment during the Mexican War, 1846-1847, under General Zachary Taylor. He was severely wounded at Buena Vista, and was complimented for coolness of bearing and gallantry of action in the commander-in-chief's dispatch of March 6, 1847.

He represented the State of Mississippi from 1847 to 1851 in the United States Senate. He was Secretary of War under President Franklin Pierce from 1853 to 1857. He again entered the Senate in 1857 and remained until he resigned his seat, January 21, 1861.

He was chosen Provisional President of the Southern Confederacy February, 1861. He delivered his inaugural address as President in Richmond, Va., February 22, 1862.

He left Richmond with his Cabinet on the night of April 2, 1865, and was arrested near Irvinsville, Georgia, May 10, 1865, by a body of Federal cavalry under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Pritchard. He was taken to Fortress Monroe and imprisoned for two years on charge of treason. He was released on bail May 13, 1867. His case was never brought to trial, and he was amnestied in December of 1868.

THE JEFFERSON DAVIS MONUMENT ASSOCIATION

THE JEFFERSON DAVIS MONUMENT ASSOCIATION was primarily the outgrowth of a mass meeting held in Mozart Hall, Richmond, two weeks after the death of Mr. Davis, on December 21, 1889. At that meeting it was resolved "to organize an association for the purpose of building a monument to Hon. Jefferson Davis," and the following officers and directors were elected: J. Taylor Ellyson, President; Lewis Ginter, Vice-President; W. D. Chesterman, Secretary, and John S. Ellett, Treasurer. Directors—D. C. Richardson, N. V. Randolph, George L. Christian, P. H. Mayo, and Peyton Wise.

The organization was chartered early in January, 1890, and passed resolutions asking Mrs. Davis' permission to bury Mr. Davis' body in Richmond, the City Council offering any of the public grounds that might be selected for that purpose. Mrs. Davis, after consideration, accepted the offer of the Council and the invitation of the Association. In September of 1892, therefore, at a meeting held in the Exchange Hotel, the United Confederate Veterans pledged their support to the erection of the Davis Monument in Richmond and their co-operation with the Davis Monument Association. On September 20th, the following appeal to the Southern people was sent out by the Veterans and the Association:

"At the Reunion, in April last, of the Confederate Veterans, meeting in New Orleans, General John B. Gordon appointed one person from each Confederate State and one from Indian Territory, to devise means to promptly erect, at some suitable place, a memorial to Jefferson Davis.

"This monument will arise and soon, to be an everlasting memorial, not only of the patriot and statesman who purely and bravely led souls, but of the ineffable valor and devotion of the most heroic soldiery which the world ever saw, whom he typified, while he commanded.

"It is our work.

“No other hands than ours can be relied upon to put stones on this pile. Our own hard-earned mite must mainly accomplish its rearing. Our own sweat must chiefly stream upon its uplifting.

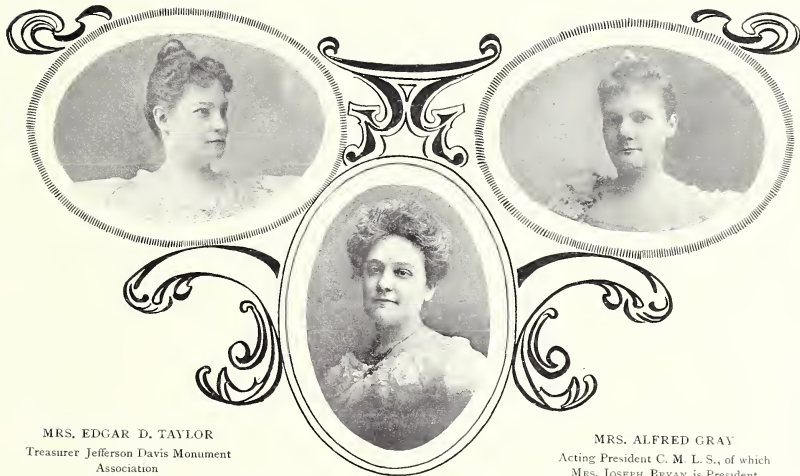

“Love and sacrifice build more monuments than money ever did or will, and we now gladly and confidently bid you to illustrate it. The men and women who fought for the Confederacy, and their descendants, must quarry this monument out of their heart’s blood, if need be. It were best in every case that they should.”

On May 30, 1893, the body of Mr. Davis, brought by special train from New Orleans, and escorted by the Louisiana Division United Confederate Veterans to Richmond, was given its final resting place in Hollywood with military and civic honors.

The first corner-stone of the Monument was laid June 3, 1896, in Monroe Park. Mrs. Davis, Miss Winnie Davis, Mrs. J. A. Hayes and other prominent Southern women were present. A general parade of military, Masonic, civic and veteran organizations was led by a band of one thousand uniformed children of Richmond. Bishop Granbery, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, made the opening prayer; the corner-stone (since removed and inclosed in the foundation of the present monument) was laid by the Grand Master of Masons of Virginia; a salute was fired by the Richmond Howitzers, and General Stephen D. Lee was the orator of the day.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy had been asked in a convention held October 31, 1895, at Atlanta, Georgia, to attend the laying of the corner-stone and assist the association in raising funds for the Davis monument. At a meeting held June 29, 1896, the Association gratefully accepted the help of the United Daughters offered through Mrs. L. H. Raines, of Savannah, Georgia, their first vice-president general.

At this time designs were submitted by artists in competition to the Executive Committee of the Monument Association, and first, second and third prizes were awarded to Percy Griffin, of New York, and Edgerton Rogers and W. C. Noland, of Richmond. A year later, however, the committee informed Mr. Griffin that the amount they had in hand did not justify their beginning work, or giving out a contract for same.

On April 12, 1899, on motion of Mr. Norman V. Randolph, it was resolved by the Association that its president, J. Taylor Ellyson, in making his annual report to the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, at the Confederate Reunion in Charleston, S. C., be requested to present the advantages of having the United Daughters of the Confederacy take charge of the work of raising the necessary balance to erect the Davis monument, and that he be also requested to say that "this Association is ready to turn over to the Daughters the funds now in hand as soon as an agreement to that end shall be reached."

The recommendation was adopted by the United Confederate Veterans at their reunion in May of 1899, and accepted by the United Daughters at their convention, in November of the same year. The Veterans turned over to the Daughters $20,000 and with it the authority "to take up the work as if it had never been begun, with liberty to select a design, choose a site preferred, in or near Richmond, and erect a monument at a time and at such cost as might be deemed proper."

Accordingly, on November 11, 1901, at a meeting held in the office of the Mayor of Richmond, Va., the officers of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association resigned, and Mrs. N. V. Randolph moved that a temporary chairman and secretary from the United Daughters of the Confederacy be appointed. This being done a permanent organization of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, U. D. C., was effected, with Mrs. S. T. McCullough, of Staunton, Va., now Mrs. George S. Holmes, of Charleston, S. C., as president; Mrs. E. G. Weed, of Jacksonville, Fla., first vice-president; Mrs. Edgar D. Taylor, as treasurer; Mrs. Norman V. Randolph, as secretary; Mrs. B. A. Blenner, Mrs. Charles T. Brown, Mrs. J. R. Miller, Mrs. R. C. Cooley, Mrs. J. A. Rounsaville, Mrs. Basil W. Duke, Mrs. R. E. Wilson, Miss Mary Harrison, Mrs. E. W. Hall, Mrs. T. J. Latham, Mrs. M. R. M. Rosenberg, Mrs. James Y. Leigh, Mrs. W. W. Arnett, Mrs. T. Augustine Smythe, and Mrs. W. J. Behan, directors.

An Advisory Board of gentlemen included J. Taylor Ellyson, Joseph Bryan, W. D. Chesterman, John S. Ellett, George L. Christian, J. Dickerson, D. C. Richardson and W. E. Cutshaw.

At a meeting of the Directors of the new organization, held June 3, 1902, in the hall of the House of Delegates, Richmond, Virginia, Mrs. Holmes, the president, presided, and the Treasurer reported $42,000 in the treasury. Mrs. Edwin

G. Weed, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Augustine Smythe, of Charleston, S. C., were appointed a committee to go to New York and confer with Mrs. Jefferson Davis as to choice of site and design for the monument to be erected to her husband.

The City Engineer, W. E. Cutshaw, and the other members of the Advisory Board, were requested to meet with the Directors and instruct them as to the adoption of a model for the monument that would not exceed $75,000 in cost. Of the models submitted, the design of an arch by Louis Gudebrod, of New York, was chosen. The Directors decided to hold a bazaar in Richmond April 15 to May 1, 1903, in which all the Southern States should take part, the proceeds to be devoted to the Confederate Museum and to making up the balance lacking in the amount decided upon as necessary to erect a monument.

The bazaar opened April 15, 1903, as projected. Every Southern State was represented in bazaar work. So were California and Ohio. The Directors of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association in all of the Southern States worked nobly and faithfully and met with ready response and support from the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the State officials and other corporations whose aid was invoked. The result was a great success, and the amount designated for the building of the monument was assured. The idea of holding a bazaar, which proved so happy a solution of all difficulties, originated with the chairman of the Central Committee of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, Mrs. Norman V. Randolph, whose motion in regard to it was adopted by the Directors.

At a convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy held in New Orleans November 12, 1902, Mrs. Randolph, to the regret of the Association, and on account of illness in her family, resigned her secretaryship, and was succeeded by Mrs. B. A. Blenner, of Richmond, Va.

June 10, 1903, Mrs. Holmes called a special meeting of the Directors of the Davis Monument Association in Richmond. At this meeting Mrs. Holmes was in the chair, and those present were: Mrs. N. V. Randolph, Mrs. E. D. Taylor, Mrs. B. A. Blenner, Mrs. E. G. Weed, Mrs. Augustine Smythe, Mrs. R. C. Cooley, Mrs. James A. Rounsaville, Mrs. Garland Jones, and Miss Mary Amelia Smith. Mr. Louis Gudebrod, of New York, whose design had been accepted in June of 1902, appeared before this meeting, and, having explained why conditions made it impossible for him to fulfil his contract, withdrew from it. After consultation with the members of their Advisory Board and the inspection of a suggestive sketch submitted by Mr. W. C. Noland, of Richmond, and explained by Mr. E. V. Valentine as to conception, Mrs. Randolph made a motion, seconded by Mrs. Rounsaville, that Mr. Valentine and Mr. Noland be requested to prepare and submit to the Jefferson Davis Monument Association designs for a monument to be erected to President Davis, and "that such designs, with cost of same, be submitted in full time, so that final action can be taken thereon by the Association at its next meeting in Charleston, S. C., November 10, 1903. That when such designs have been accepted by the Association the work of erection and completion be committed to a building committee of this Association, with power, after the Executive Committee, to make and execute all steps necessary to finish the Davis Monument by June 3, 1907.

At the United Daughters of the Confederacy Charleston Convention, in November of 1903, the design of Messrs. Valentine and Noland was adopted, and a resolution offered by Mrs. Rounsaville for securing a monument site at the intersection of Monument Avenue and Cedar Street, in Richmond, was adopted. The sequel of this resolution was found in a telegram addressed to the Association in St. Louis, October 3, 1904, which announced the granting by the City Council of Richmond of the site and foundation for the Jefferson Davis Monument.

Ground was broken by Mrs. George S. Holmes for the monument November 7, 1905, in the presence of several officers of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association and of the Advisory Board. The pick and shovel used on this occasion have been placed in the Confederate Museum.

Pres. Southern Confederate Memorial Ass n.

At the thirteenth annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, held in Gulport, Miss., November 14-17, 1906, Mrs. Holmes submitted the following report:

Madame President General and Daughters of the Confederacy:

Just seven years ago the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, for erecting a memorial to the President of the Confederate States of America, was transferred to this honorable body by the United Confederate Veterans. Undismayed by the magnitude of the task, the United Daughters of the Confederacy have found no labor too heavy, no self-denial too great to fulfill this desire in loyalty and love; the Confederate Southern Memorial Association, and the United Confederate Veterans greatly assisting us—nay, each man, woman and child of the South has held up our hands.

I can now announce to you that the monument will be in your hands for unveiling on June 3, 1907, complete in every perfected detail.

To give us the inspiration of their presence and to rejoice with us on this most auspicious day, the R. E. Lee Camp, United Confederate Veterans, ably seconded by the city of Richmond and State of Virginia, has invited the United Confederate Veterans to hold the reunion of 1907 in the last Capital of the Confederacy, where Davis sleeps beside the James, which rolls in endless requiem.

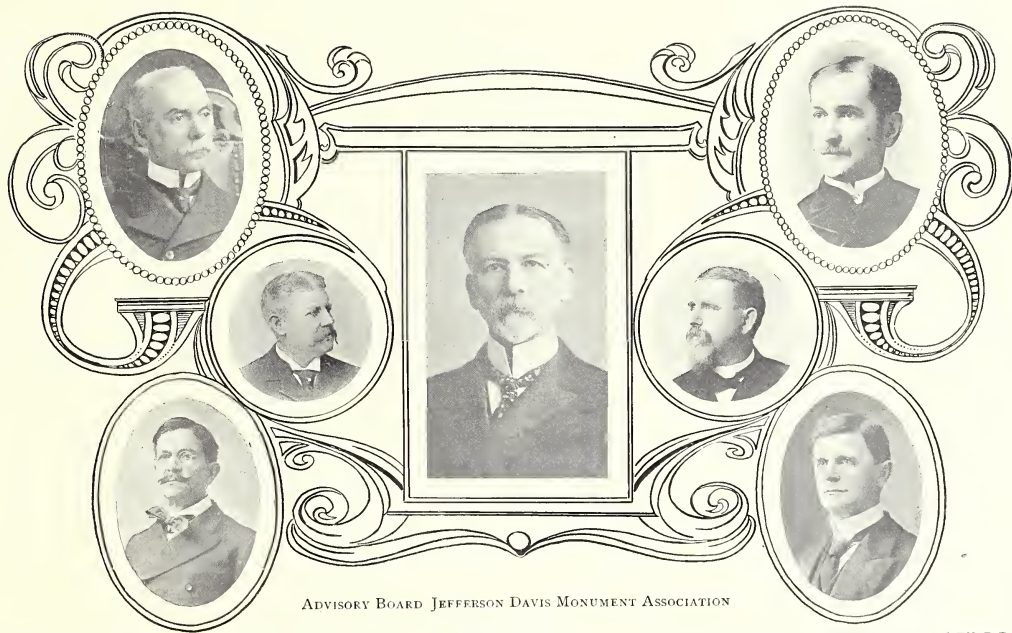

Only once more shall I appear before you to render an account of the stewardship of your Jefferson Davis Monument Association: now I can only thank you for your generosity in gifts and approval of our deeds, and pray "God bless us every one."

Respectfully submitted,

NELLIE HOTCHKISS HOLMES,
MRS. GEORGE S. HOLMES, President,
Jefferson Davis Monument Association, U. D. C.

Nothing further by way of comment is needed. The glorious conclusion of the work given into the hands of Southern women needs no eulogy: It speaks its own everlasting praise.
